

Latter-day Scriptures in a Year in Chronological Order

365-Day Reading Plan

Our goal is to read all canonized Latter-day Saint scripture during a 365 day year—averaging about 117 verses per day. Most of this reading plan is in roughly historic-chronological order by subject matter (rather than by the date it was written). Most of the readings are kept in their book's modern chapter context. In some cases, a few key verses are taken out of their chapter setting for use with parallel scriptures on a specific topic. Those verses which are repeated a second time during this reading plan are marked in red.

I have selected some end-times chapters and verses for reading at the end of the reading-plan year. End-times prophecies often mention more than one major event or topic. Also, the sequence of many such future events is uncertain. So, end-times chronology is a guess, and the sequence of those readings is merely expedient.
